

SECOND THOMAS GOYNE BUST OF SHROUD HEAD NOW COMPLETE

In Newsletter no. 10 we published U.S. sculptor Thomas Goyne's controversial reconstruction of the head of the man of the Shroud. In September he sent the above photograph of his second, wounded version of the head. At that stage there was still work to be done on it, but at the time of going to press there is news that the sculpture is now complete, and is going on permanent display at Father Kim Dreisbach's Atlanta Center for the Continuing Study of the Shroud of Turin, in Georgia, U.S.A.. There are likely to be colour photographs of the new sculpture in the Easter issue of the Sunday Express colour magazine.