In their discussion, Dan and Dr. Habermas examine the complex history and preservation of the Shroud, digging into why it has captivated both scholars and skeptics for decades. Together, they'll tackle questions such as: -- What are the most crucial questions for assessing the Shroud's authenticity? -- Could the burial cloth of Jesus truly have survived for nearly 2,000 years? -- What evidence supports or refutes the theory that the Shroud was created in the Middle Ages? Could it depict someone other than Jesus? -- How do non-biblical sources, archaeology, and medical research contribute to our understanding of crucifixion practices? -- What kind of event could have imprinted the image of a 6 ft., 180 lb. man on this ancient cloth? As Dr. Habermas unpacks over 40 years of Shroud research, discover why this remarkable artifact continues to be a point of discussion in Christian apologetics and Church history.”

The History of the Shroud of Turin – History of ... - October 2, 2024 – Video (16:42) – Here is an excerpt from the description: "The Shroud of Turin is a rectangular linen cloth measuring approximately 14 feet long and 3.5 feet wide. It bears the faint image of a man who appears to have suffered injuries consistent with crucifixion, sparking centuries of intrigue and debate over its origins. Believed by some to be the burial cloth of Jesus Christ, the Shroud has been a subject of religious devotion as well as scientific scrutiny. The cloth's unique size and the enigmatic image it carries have made it a powerful symbol for many believers while also raising numerous questions about its authenticity. The early history of the Shroud is unclear. Some believe it was part of the relics of the Byzantine emperors before it disappeared during the Sack of Constantinople in 1204. The first well-documented appearance of the Shroud was in 1353 when it was displayed in a church in Lirey, France. Over the centuries, the Shroud passed through various hands, eventually coming into the possession of the House of Savoy, who moved it to Turin in 1578. In 1983, the Shroud was officially given to the Holy See by the royal family, but the Catholic Church has remained neutral about its authenticity, leaving the matter to personal belief."

Jesus' Face from the Shroud of Turin: New Discoveries & AI Reconstruction \(Mind Blown!\) – Widerperspective Productions – September 28, 2024 – Video (5:35) – Description: "In this video, we explore the mysteries of the Shroud of Turin using advanced AI technology to reconstruct the face that many believe to be Jesus Christ. Scientific evidence places this ancient relic in Jerusalem, with studies revealing limestone dirt, pollen, and even letters on the Shroud's forehead that may form a Hebrew phrase. What could these markings mean? Could this be the true face of the crucified Christ? With over 120 scientific papers published on the Shroud, it remains one of the most studied objects in history. At the end of the video, we touch on a powerful statement: Jesus rose in 3 days, which may even be hinted at within the Shroud itself. A sample of the shroud was tested with this NEW technique. This technique involves measures the patterns, intensities, and angles of scatter produced when a sample is illuminated by an x-ray beam. This is a non destructive test that reveals information about the crystal structure, chemical composition, and physical properties of materials and thin films. The X Ray Scattering Test is superior to carbon dating for determining the age of fabric fibers This NEW peer reviewed research shows the Shroud is much older and is around 2,000 years old.”

An investigation into the provenance of the Turin Shroud – Islamic Origins – September 8, 2024 – Video (35:17) - Description: “This video sets out to show that the notion that there is no mention of the shroud known as the Turin shroud before the 13th century is false. As early as the year 400AD, St Ephrem refers to the image of Christ that was given to king Abgarus. A 10th century latin text that translates an earlier Syriac text from before 769AD clarifies that it is a full body image of Jesus and not just an image of Jesus' face. The conclusion is obvious: the mandylion [cloth] of Edessa is the same object as the shroud of Turin. Its existence is attested extensively throughout the whole period. This video re-tells the amazing story of how travelled from Jerusalem and ended up in Turin over the course of 15 centuries.”

This Stories Are Soul Food episode has the entire scoop -- including: Nate's impetus for the whole experiment (a professor discarded the Bible because the Shroud was "proof of the resurrection"); how the inspiration came to him (through a monstrous collection of G.K. Chesterton's Father Brown stories); and how his theory continues to be ignored by contemporary Roman Catholics (although the medieval Roman Catholics declared that the Shroud of Turin was fake because they'd found the craftsman who had faked it!). You'll also hear why, if you believe your Bible, you already should have known the Shroud was fake. But for the first time in the modern era, we've got a frontrunner for how the Shroud of Turin was made (and it wasn't made at the moment of Resurrection).”

What's Next On The Backstory on the Shroud of Turin — The Backstory on the Shroud of Turin – July 31, 2024 – Video (53:07) – Here is an excerpt from the description: “Join us for an enlightening interview with Sergio Graces, esteemed author and scholar of the Shroud of Turin. Sergio is the author of the groundbreaking book ‘The Secret Cross,’ which uncovers one of the most shocking discoveries related to the Shroud of Turin—three symbols branded on the forehead of Jesus, including a cross that had gone unnoticed for centuries. In this episode, Sergio delves into the intricate details of his in-depth study, exploring the physical, geometric, and anatomical characteristics of these mysterious marks. He discusses their connection to the Roman penal marks known as inscriptio frontis and their significance in the New Testament, particularly in the oldest Greek versions. Sergio also examines possible mentions of these marks in extra-biblical texts and their prefiguration in the Old Testament.”

Shroud Wars Panel Review \(Part 13\) - Shroud History from 30-500 A.D. – Real Seekers – Video (4:13:36) – June 22, 2024 – Description: “Putting the final Shroud Wars episode on image formation on hold, I wanted to coming back to the issue of Shroud history as disclosed in the documents; is Ian Wilson’s Image of Edessa theory or Jack Markwardt’s Image of God Incarnate theory correct? Are neither of them correct? In my Shroud Wars Panel Review Part 4 we attempted to address this issue but I demanded too much s host, covering the whole pre-medieval period (30-1204 A.D.) all in a single show was simply too demanding on my guests. As such, I have decided to revisit the evidence on this front by breaking up the evidence into 3-4 historical periods (starting with the period 30-500 A.D.). Joining me will be Jack Markwardt (Image of God Incarnate) and Shroud skeptic Hugh Farey. Enjoy the first of 3-4 shows on this topic :) RSM Blog (with free scholarly sources) = <https://realseekerministries.wordpress...>”

Video: Behind The Shroud w/ Barrie Schwartz – Prometheus Lens Podcast – June 22, 2024 – Video (42:38) – Description: “I just found out today (6-22-24) that Barrie is no longer with us, Barrie was one of the lead investigators of The Shroud of Turin. Barrie was the best of best as an investigator and human being. I had this footage that was cut from my original interview with him. I wanted people to get a view from behind the scenes on what kind of guy Schwartz really was. The man left a lasting impression on me. I pray for the comfort of his friends and family during their time of loss. If you haven't seen the full interview links will be below.
